30 for 30

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

30 for 30 is the umbrella title for a series of documentary films airing on ESPN and its sister networks and online properties. The series highlights important people and events in the sports world and in sports history. 30 for 30 includes two "volumes" of 30 episodes each,[1] a 13-episode series under the ESPN Films Presents title in 2011-2012, and a series of 30 for 30 Shorts shown through the ESPN.com website. The series also expanded to include Soccer Stories, airing in advance of the 2014 FIFA World Cup.

Background [edit]

The idea for the 30 for 30 series began with ESPN.com columnist and Grantland.com founder Bill Simmons, who wanted feature filmmakers to recount the sports stories, people, and events which they took a personal interest or involvement in, however great or small, and felt had not been fully explored. Volume I of 30 for 30, which premiered in October 2009 and ran through December 2010, chronicles 30 stories from the "ESPN era," which extended 30 years from the network's founding in 1979; each Volume I film details the issues, trends, people, teams, or events that transformed the sports landscape during those 3 decades, including what Simmons describes as "stories that resonated at the time [they occurred] but were eventually forgotten for whatever reason."[3] Subsequent films in the series, including Volume II and online-only shorts, have expanded the series' scope to include people and events from outside the "ESPN era."

John Dahl, Connor Schell and Simmons serve as 30 for 30's executive producers.[4][5][6]

Other films were previously announced for the 30 for 30 series but were not included in the series. These films, which began airing in 2011, are a continuation of 30 for 30, dealing with more sports stories that 30 for 30 did not cover. According to 30 for 30 producer Bill Simmons: "We're spinning off the "30 for 30" series next year into something that will probably be called "30 for 30 Presents" or something like that... we're going to be putting out 4–5 sports docs per year on the level of the best "30 for 30" docs and getting the best filmmakers to do them. Same creative team is involved. We have some terrific ideas in the hopper. So even though the SMU doc will be the 30th one (right after the Heisman ceremony) don't think the spirit of the series is going away." These additional films include:

List of 30 for 30 Volume II films

On May 15, 2012, it was announced that the 30 for 30 series would return in the fall of 2012 with all new documentaries. The documentaries will be integrated with Grantland.com by podcasts, feature stories and oral histories. In addition to the new documentaries, unrelated short films will release each month on Grantland.com.

Unless otherwise noted, the following films are all 90 minutes in length (including commercials).
Floyd,[2]

| 45 | 2     | 9.79* | Daniel Gordon | October 9, 2012 | 1.313[50] |

A profile of the Men's 100 meter final at the 1988 Summer Olympics and the lives of the 8 men who participated, including Ben Johnson (whose world-record run of 9.79 seconds was scrubbed after he tested positive for anabolic steroids) and Carl Lewis (who was awarded the gold medal after Johnson’s disqualification).

46 | 3     | There’s No Place Like Home | Maura Mandt and Josh Swade | October 16, 2012 | 1.007[51] |

The story of one fan’s obsessive quest to purchase (at a 2010 auction) James Naismith’s original rules of basketball, perhaps the most important historical document in American sports history, and to bring it “home” to Kansas, where Naismith taught and coached at the University of Kansas for more than 40 years. (70 mins in length)

47 | 4     | Benji | Coodie and Chike | October 23, 2012 | 1.488[52] |

The life of Ben Wilson, a well-regarded Chicago high school basketball star, and how his November 1984 murder (one day before the start of his senior season) had a wide-ranging impact.[5]

48 | 5     | Ghosts of Ole Miss | Fritz Mitchell | October 30, 2012 | 1.023[53] |

Mississippi native Wright Thompson explores tumultuous events of 1962, when the University of Mississippi campus both erupted in violence over integration and swelled with pride over its unbeaten football team, and how those incidents continue to shape the state 50 years later. (60 mins in length)

49 | 6     | You Don’t Know Bo | Michael Bonfiglio | December 8, 2012 | 3.600[54] |

A profile of Bo Jackson and how his college and professional feats in two sports (baseball and football) captured the public’s imagination and made Jackson a cultural (and marketing) icon.

50 | 7     | Survive and Advance | Jonathan Hock | March 17, 2013 | 1.603[55] |

A look at the North Carolina State Wolfpack men's basketball team's successful and improbable championship runs through the 1983 ACC and the 1983 NCAA tournaments. (2 hrs in length)

51 | 8     | Elway to Marino | Ken Rodgers and NFL Films | April 23, 2013 | 1.060[56] |

A look at the 1983 NFL Draft and the six quarterbacks taken in its first round, specifically John Elway (the first overall pick) and Dan Marino (the last QB picked in Round 1). The film features the recollections of Martin Demoff, the agent for both Elway and Marino, who shares a personal diary he kept to chronicle the indecision the Baltimore Colts had with drafting Elway with the first pick or trading it away, as well as the other teams’ interest in his two future-Hall of Fame clients.

52 | 9     | Hawaiian: The Legend of Eddie Aikau | Sam George | October 1, 2013 | 0.791[57] |

Chronicling the life of big wave surfer and lifeguard Eddie Aikau, whose death served as inspiration to an entire spiritual movement.

53 | 10    | Free Spirits | Daniel H. Forer | October 8, 2013 | 0.699[58] |

The story of the colorful figures who made up the American Basketball Association’s Spirits of St. Louis, and how Spirits owners Ozzie and Daniel Silna, with their team about to be left out in the ABA’s merger with the NBA, managed to negotiate a deal that has allowed the brothers’ involvement in pro basketball to continue to exist in a most unusual fashion. (60 mins in length)

54 | 11    | No Más | Eric Drath | October 15, 2013 | 1.343[59] |

An inside look at the two boxing matches between Sugar Ray Leonard and Roberto Duran in the 1980s, with insight from boxing experts, family members and the two fighters themselves.

55 | 12    | Big Shot | Kevin Connolly | October 22, 2013 | 1.07[60] |

The story of how young businessman John Spano struck a deal to purchase the New York Islanders in 1996, only to be later revealed as a fraud and being near financial insolvency.

56 | 13    | This is What They Want | Brian Koppelman and David Leven | October 29, 2013 | 0.866[61] |

The story of a 39-year-old Jimmy Connors and his unexpected and extraordinary underdog run at the 1991 U.S. Open, where he played as a wildcard entrant and reached the semifinals of the men's singles draw.

57 | 14    | Bernie and Ernie | Jason Hehir | November 5, 2013 | 1.125[62] |

The friendship of Bernard King and Ernie Grunfeld is explored, as well as their time together playing college basketball at Tennessee, a partnership known as the "Ernie and Bernie Show".

58 | 15    | Youngstown Boys | Jeff Zimbalist and Michael Zimbalist | December 14, 2013 | 1.967[63] |

The stories of two Ohio State football figures connected with Youngstown, Ohio—running back Maurice Clarett, a native, and coach Jim Tressel, former head coach at Youngstown State University—exploring their football exploits at Ohio State, including a national championship in 2002, and their scandalous exits from the school. (2 hours in length)

Common goals of teamwork and dedication to a shared purpose unite a youth soccer team, composed of 9 children each from Palestine and Israel, many of whom come face-to-face with the other nationality for the first time in their lives.

List of 30 for 30: Soccer Stories films [edit]

On January 11, 2014, it was announced that a soccer-only 30 for 30 series, featuring two-feature length films and six 30-minute films, would be aired in April 2014, featuring “compelling narratives from around the international soccer landscape”. Additionally, a 10-part vignette series, titled Coração, about Brazil’s rich history, will air during ESPN’s 2014 FIFA World Cup coverage.[50]

Chile hosts a decisive World Cup qualifier at Santiago's National Stadium just weeks after the stadium had been transformed into a concentration camp and killing field for opponents of Augusto Pinochet (who had just gained power in a military coup). Though FIFA investigates the matter, the game goes on, with the Chilean team winning in a walkover after their opponents from the Soviet Union boycott in protest over the stadium's use. June 18, 1994, and fans of Ireland's national team are euphoric over their team's World Cup opener against Italy at Giants Stadium. Joy turns to horror, however, at a bar in Loughinisland, Northern Ireland, where a Protestant terror group kills six men who were watching the game. The tragedy is a low point and a turning point in the Northern Ireland conflict, one that would ultimately contribute to paramilitaries on both sides calling ceasefires just weeks later. The Jules Rimet Trophy, awarded to the World Cup winners from 1930 to 1970, is a prize shrouded in mystery, as the whereabouts of the original trophy is unknown. This film focuses on the trophy's first brush with crime – a Nazi plan to steal the Rimet Trophy from Italy during World War II - and Ottorino Barassi, an Italian soccer official who attempted to protect the valued prize. After leading their national team to victory in the 1978 FIFA World Cup, Argentines Ossie Ardiles and Ricky Villa join Tottenham Hotspur, becoming cult heroes in England after leading Spurs to the 1981 FA Cup Final. Things radically change, however, when a conflicted Ardiles leaves Spurs and returns to Buenos Aires after Argentine troops descend on the British-ruled Falkland Islands, asserting sovereignty over the territory and resulting in the Falklands War.

A 10-part vignette series that will explore the music, dance and history of Brazil, to discover what lies behind Brazil's legend, something most Americans know little about, and exploring how soccer is truly the expression of the soul of its people.

Critical and ratings response [edit]

The series had a slow beginning. The first film, Peter Berg's Kings Ransom, a chronicle of Wayne Gretzky's trade from the Edmonton Oilers to the Los Angeles Kings, premiered on October 6, 2009 to poor ratings.<sup>[7][56]</sup> Kings Ransom drew a 0.5 national rating and a total viewership of 645,000.<sup>[7][56]</sup> The premiere of Kings Ransom aired at... the same time as the 2009 American League Central tie-breaker game between the Minnesota Twins and Detroit Tigers on TBS, which went into extra innings and drew a 4.5 rating.[citation needed]

As awareness and critical acclaim grew, the viewing audience also grew. By the seventh episode, The U, the audience had grown to a 1.8 rating and well over 2 million viewers.[9] The A.V. Club review for the eighth entry, Winning Time: Reggie Miller vs. The New York Knicks, called it "the most hotly anticipated [of the first eight]" and stated that "it more than lived up to the hype."[57]

The A.V. Club has given positive and negative reviews for different episodes in the series, with notable critical reviews of the three episodes that had involvement by the media production arms of Major League Baseball (Four Days in October), the NBA (Once Brothers) and NASCAR (Tim Richmond: To the Limit).[58][59][60]

Awards [edit]

- 2010 Peabody Award Winner[61]
- 2010 International Documentary Association's "Distinguished Continuing Series"[10]

Sponsors [edit]

Cadillac and Levi's are the presenting sponsors of the series. The Cadillac name appears on the 30 for 30 logo, while the Levi's "go forth" slogan appears on the bottom corner of the screen during the directors interstitial comments, which appear for 45 seconds at the beginning of each film and 30 seconds at the end. Commercials for both companies were shown during every intermission during the original air dates, with Levi's guaranteed a 60-second commercial slot at the beginning of the third act. Cadillac replaced Honda as a primary sponsor; during its time as a contributor, Honda aired parts of its "Dream the Impossible" documentary series in the first commercial break.
